Young Men Compete for Leadership Honor

National recognition as President-of-the-Year may await a Los Angeles boy or girl fortunate enough to survive competition among 3,600 Junior Achievement company presidents, according to Frank Gard Jameson, chairman of the Junior Achievement committee of the southern California chapter of the Young Presidents' Organization, who today announced the start of the YPO nationally sponsored contest.

Ninety-nine presidents and past-presidents of 65 miniature firms in Los Angeles have been invited to submit entries before the April 4 deadline.

To qualify, according to Jameson, president of Pacific Automation Products, Inc., Glendale, the junior industrialists must now be, or have been, a J. A. company president and must display leadership ability in managing a successful junior firm, public speaking, and various activities promoting Junior Achievement.
